his party left Washington on the 4 o'clock train yesterday for New Haven, where he will witness the bi-centennial ceremonies. Mr. K. Tsudzuki, ex-vice minister of foreign affairs for Japan, when shown the press dispatch from Yokohama stating that Marquis Ito's party had initiated a strong movement to overthrow the Japanese cabinet, said: "I can say authorstatively that such a movement has not the sanction of Marquis Ito, and that he has no desire to witness the overthrow of the present cabinet. When we left Japan, political affairs there were practically peaceful, and I do not believe the movement, if any, will prove to be a very formidable one. We have had no information to lead us to be-lieve that such an event was imminent."

Ceremony Followed by a Wedding Breakfast.

circumstances surrounding the marriage this morning of Mrs. Regina Barbour de Rengifo to Mr. Eugene Thiebaut, formerly first secretary of the French embassy here and now stationed at Berne, Switzerland.

chapel of Cardinal Martinelli at the apostolic delegation at half-past 10 o'clock, his eminence officiating and being also the celebrant of the nuptial mass which followed. The attendants to the cardinal were Rev. Dr. Rooker, secretary to the delegation, and Rev. F. X. Fink, S. J., rector of St. and Rev. F. X. Fink, S. J., rector of St. Aloysius Church. The chapel was lavishly decorated with pink chrysanthemums and foliage plants. The relatives and witnesses were present upon the arrival of the bride, who was escorted by her brother, Mr. Jas. F. Barbour. Lieut. Juan S. Atwell of the Argentine legation was witness for the bride and Mr. Pierre de Margerie, charge d'affaires, and M. Jules Boeufve, chancellor of the French embassy, were the witnesses for the groom. All the other members of the French embassy now in Washington were present, with Mr. and Mrs. ington were present, with Mr. and Mrs. Symonds of South Carolina, intimate friends of the parents of M. Thiebaut, who represented the aged couple.

The bride was exceedingly attractive in her trained dress of real point applique. The yoke and a part of the steeves were of tucked mousseline de soie and the undersleeves of lace came down over the hands to form mitts. A softly folded girdle of pale blue panne velvet and a narrow fold of the same around the tucked collar gave a becoming finish. Around her shoulders, arranged as a fichu, was worn a long scarf of point applique. This exquisite piece of lace was the wedding vell of M. Thiebaut's mother, and was also worn by her mother before her. It was her wedding gift to the bride of today. The hat worn was a Gainsborough made of lapped folds of white felt, broad white ostrich plume.

The last touch to this exquisite toilet was the carrying of an ivery-bound prayer Cardinal Martinelli and Rev. Father Fink were also present at the wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. MacCartney, chief en-gineer, retire. S. N., and Mrs. Mac-

Cartney, 1704 19th street, the bride's sister, who had assisted at the ceremony were also present. Twenty-one covers were laid, the company being seated at three tables, each decked with pink chrysanthemums. Late this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Thiebaut went to New York and tomorrow will go to Albany to see the sister of the latter, a novice at the Convent of the Sacred Heart. Thursday the couple sail for Europe and will visit Mr. Thiebaut's parents before settling down in their apartment in Paris The will visit Mr. Thiebaut's parents before settling down in their apartment in Paris. The bride's going-away gown was of dark blue broadcloth, both the skirt and the short jacket richly trimmed in black and white embroidery and braiding. Her hat was of black panne velvet, with plumes, and her traveling wrap of light cloth.

Mr. Thiebaut's diplomatic career promises well for his future rapid advancement. He was connected with the consular service of well for his future rapid advancement. He was connected with the consular service of his country in New Orleans and New York for many years. He came to this city in 1896 as secretary of the embassy, and during the several absences of the ambassador served as charge d'affaires. He assisted Mr. Cambon in negotiating the reciprocity agreement between France and the United States, and was prominently identified with the history-making enoch in this United States, and was prominently identified with the history-making epoch in this country during the Spanish war and its culmination in the peace protocol. For his work he received, with other members of the embassy staff, honors from his own government and from the Spanish court. His transfer from this city to Switzerland was made at his own received. His transfer from this city to Switzerland was made at his own request, as he desired to be near his aged parents, his father having passed his ninety-second year. His charming young wife leaves behind her in this city a devotedly attached family circle and legions of friends, who will be glad to welcome her when the couple return next year, as they now hope, for a brief visit. Her personal attractions are well matched by her mental gifts and accomplishments. Marquis Ito, the Japanese statesman, and by her mental gifts and accomplishments, which particularly fit her for the station in which particularly fit her for the station in life which she has chosen and which she so conspicuously adorns. Her education was received almost entirely in Paris, and her acquaintance with French life and manners will cause her to feel entirely at home in that country. Her first marriage with the late Gen. Julio Rengifo, then charge d'affaires of the legation of Colombia, took place at St. Matthew's Church in the presence of near relatives and friends. His death occurred by the burning of the alim death occurred by the burning of the ship by which he was traveling to his post in South America.
